Who You Gonna Call?
Security Scandal at Northern!

Rico Tenzen: Lucre Safety Expert

After the debacle with Mr. Clinton's private security forces mixed with Havre's finest, I walked about the MSU-Northern campus from one end to the next (even inside every building) at different hours to get a perspective on the level of security that good ol' MSU-N had to offer.

I was shocked and appalled by the non-existent security forces that were supposed to keep damsels from distressing, and to strike fear in the hearts of those who do wrong. Even after calling the number located on the outside of every building here on campus, the only response from the "Emergency" number of 3707 was an answering machine message from an elderly man claiming to be security (who had the voice of a van driver offering candy to children). Under further investigation, I found that the legitimate number for the campus security is 265-3755.

As shady as some of MSU-N students seem, the question often asked, "what are the faculty and staff to do?" Should the Filthy Lucre continue the campaign to hire small children as security forces?

Perhaps the answer is a complete lockdown of the MSU-N facilities. Rumor has it that the lockdown plan is already underway as students who attempted to work during the weekend were kicked to the curb, due to the "lack of security" that MSU-N had to offer.

Is the school getting so paranoid that even janitorial staff has to kick out the workaholic overachievers for fear that students are up to no good? This problem will soon affect ever more students; as finals are less then a month away, numerous students will be attempting to get last minute cramming in.

Until the security issue has subsided, it is strongly advised that you take caution when walking about the campus after hours, as the lack of security makes any person walking outside at night seem like a potentially dangerous figure. Fear the shadows; walk quickly or with friends, preferably with baseball bats or heavy chains, creating the illusion of a motley crew that no one will want to mess with. Finally, be suspicious of anyone who claims to be security.

[This whole issue would be a moot point if students would just stop working on class projects at 4pm, and go out binge drinking like they're supposed to. -ed.]

Student eXellenze Awards!

Lupé Tragedia: Editor

The semester is drawing to a close, which means it's time once again to begin the nomination process for the 18th annual Filthy Lucre Student eXellenze Awards™! There are plenty of kids on this campus who do great things in the realms of academia, community development, campus subversion, or general debauchery, and they deserve to be rewarded.

Attached to this issue is a nomination form, which can be used to describe why your pick deserves an award for their area of expertise. In the final issue of the semester, the Filthy Lucre will announce the winners of several categories, depending on number and quality of entries, and our own laziness.

The process is open to everyone: professors or staff can nominate a student, students can nominate a friend, individuals can nominate themselves. Creativity in the voting process is valued, and we'll let you decide what that means. Entries can be delivered to the Filthy Lucre offices in the basement of the Student Union Building, or care of the SUB bookstore.

Yes, there will be prizes. No, we can't tell you what the prizes will be. Vote early, vote often, and remember: the Frequency is Courage!

Know Your Place.
